How has this person done?

visitors to Iceland are often struck by the incredible physical geography; from black-sanded beaches to snow-capped mountains, this island really does seem to have it all. One feature that is bound to entertain, however, are the bubbling geysers found around this geothermic wonder. up close, one can see that they are gently bubbling - but be careful! Once these get well hot, they shoot water up so high right into the air.
